Blank'et-wash'er. A machine for washing printer's blankets. Ordinarily it consists of a vat and rollers, the blanket being alternately soaked and squeezed. In the illustration a scraper or doctor is used to clean the roller. A similar machine is used for calicoes and other fabrics.