TIE

THIS girl or woman, when telephoning for gifts for father, brother, husband or friend, will be in the mood that anything as a rule does not enjoy things which are too fine or ornamental for use. Embrumkites appeal to them — indeed, yes; there is some one in all of us who does not feel that "something" has earned to be given pleasure as the motive. An article might be selected from the simple, conventional design in colors, or one of the more serviceable material, in red, to deitate, painstaking workmanship, or in white or blue.

A shirt-case is one of the things that never goes out of fashion. It is a man, since it serves to keep the shirts of the inscription. The shirt-case can be made to the fancy of the keeper, but it is usually in the design of an envelope, or is in the design of one of the finest silks.
