TORCHON LACE-WORK.

INTRODUCTION.

Object and Scope of these Handbooks.—In Part I. the object kept in view was to give instruction in the essentials of Torchon Lace making; and the patterns worked out were designed to afford progressive lessons, involving nearly all the ordinary stitches met with, in this kind of lace. In Part II. the object is to give more advanced instruction, and to teach the various fancy stitches found in different kinds of lace.

Patterns with Directions for Working.—In this second Part, eighteen patterns are given with directions for working, each of which differs from the rest in design, and is a sample of a particular footing, scollop, or fancy stitch. For anyone desiring to understand the working of the different laces given in this book, it is advisable to work a short length of each of the patterns given. For those wishing to make the work remunerative, it would be best to select one pattern at a time, and to work at least half-a-dozen yards of it.

Patterns and Designs without Directions.—Besides the eighteen patterns for which directions are given, thirty-six others are added, with the designs, but without directions for working. The object of this is to supply to the laces-maker an additional set of useful patterns which can be easily worked by those who have followed the directions given in both Parts. The first twelve of these are samples of narrow lace much used for trimmings. The remainder are wider patterns, suitable for tea-cloths and such like, or, if worked on a larger scale and with coarse thread, for bedspreads. A few samples of corners are also given, as well as of Italian lace, which are very effective and not difficult to work.

How to Make a Design.—To enable the worker to copy any pattern of lace, a lesson is given on ‘How to make a design from any pattern of lace.’ This should be very carefully read, and the designs actually worked out on sectional paper, by those wishing to be able to make a design for themselves.

How the Designs are Drawn.—Where instructions are given for working the patterns, the designs are drawn on paper ruled to one-eighth of an inch, so as to leave space for the figures to be printed; but they can be copied on sectional paper of any scale. The illustrations of lace are usually given in the scale of the lace itself. The size of threads for different scales is given on p. 14 of Part I. If the lace is a close pattern, the finer threads recommended for the scale should be used. For more open patterns, the coarser threads will be found suitable.

Round Pillows and Bobbins with Beads.—When a wide pattern of lace is to be worked, it is advisable to use a round pillow and bobbins which are weighted with beads. On a round pillow the bobbins can readily be moved aside to make room for those in use at the moment without materially altering their relative positions, and the bobbins, being weighted with beads (see Fig. 1), which are hung on by a piece of wire passed through the end of the bobbin, do not become so easily entangled as those that are not so weighted. For *point-ground laces, which are very fine, and consequently require a great number of bobbins, the weighted kind are always used.

To Make a Round Pillow.—Make a large ball, about 50 inches in circumference, of horse-hair, flock, or hemp (if the latter, a thick layer of wheat-straw should be used for the outside), flatten it on the top, and bind it over with list or strips of any woollen material. Cover the whole with a piece of strong white cloth, keeping it well stretched over the flattened top. Stretch a piece of flannel or bath-coating over the top, and sew down the edges. Make an outer cover of blue or green zephyr, or linen, by cutting a circular piece of about 15 inches in diameter, and running a straight piece—deep enough to cover the ball—round the edge, with a hem for a running string. This outer cover should frequently be removed and washed. The usual cover cloths will be required. The stand on which the round pillow is shown in the frontispiece of this Part is much used by lace-makers, as it prevents the pillow from rolling.

Removing the Lace from the Pillow.—Lace worked on a round pillow must be removed on completing the length of the pricking, and replaced at the top. In doing this, a handkerchief or cover cloth should be placed under, and folded over, the bobbins, and securely pinned to prevent their slipping out. After doing this, the bobbins should be held in one hand whilst the pins are removed, care being taken to prevent the lace being dragged. The lace should then be pinned at the top of the pricking to the depth of a couple of inches, so as to make the design meet, when the work can be continued.

Stitches used in Lace-Making.—The drawings given below are illustrations of the stitches used in the different laces in these handbooks and of the designs on which they are worked. The patterns in which directions are given for the working of new and fancy stitches are shown in brackets below the illustrations, against the name of the stitches.

2.—Scalloped Edging with Twisted Half-Stitch Ground.

Bobbins required, 11 pairs.
Design marked a to i (Fig. 5).
Hang three pairs at a, and one pair at each of the remaining letters.
Inclosé the pin at a with the 2nd and 3rd pairs.

* The Scallops.—Work cloth-stitch with the 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th pairs, twisting both workers and hangers after each stitch; work cloth-stitch with the 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th pairs; twist the 10th pair once, and work a cloth-stitch with the 10th and 11th pairs; twist the 10th pair once and the 11th pair thrice, and put a pin in hole 1. The holes in the straight edge are worked in the usual way. In continuing the ground, care must be taken to follow the arithmetical order of the figures. Hole 39 completes the ground.

Note.—Observe that a small square hole is formed at each pin by the extra twist given to the two pairs before inclosing the pin.

The Scallop (continued).—Carry the workers (the 10th pair) through all the pairs of passives, and work the straight edge again, †, putting a pin in hole 40. Carry the workers through the 18th, 17th, 16th, and 15th pairs, and put a pin in hole 5. Carry the workers back through the same pairs, giving them one twist before they are connected with the outside pair; and then repeat as at ‡, putting a pin in hole 6.

Continue to work the zigzag in the scollop in the same way, taking in a fresh pair after twisting them once at each turn on the left, until hole 13 is reached, where the workers (the 12th pair) must be connected with the 11th pair.

This is done as follows:—

§ Work a cloth-stitch with the 11th and 12th pairs; twist both pairs once; put a pin in hole 13, and inclose with a cloth-stitch.

Carry the 12th pair through all the pairs in the scollop to hole 14, and inclose the pin.

Here cross the passives again, as at ]

Continue the scallop from hole 67 to hole 76.

Carry the workers of the left edge of footing to hole 77, and back to hole 78, as at *.

Carry the workers of the right edge of footing to hole 79, and back to hole 80, and the 19th pair through the 18th, 17th, 16th, and 15th pairs, and then on through the 14th, 13th, 12th, and 11th pairs, giving one twist to the workers and hangers after each cloth-stitch; put a pin in hole 80, and inclose with a cloth-stitch.

Repeat from the beginning, *

Note.—It will be observed from the pattern of the lace that the passives cross at regular intervals in the footing, and that this is marked in the design by a cross. In continuing the lace, it will be found that the crossings do not occur at the same relative points, and, in consequence, the marks for the crossings in the design must be strictly followed.

4.—Fern-Leaf Edging.

twist both pairs once; put a pin in hole 9, and leave the workers hanging ready to be connected with the workers of the right edge of the footing. The 3rd and 4th pairs are the workers of either edge at this stage.

† The Cucumber Plait.—Use the 3rd and 4th pairs. Count the bobbins from the left, 1, 2, 3, 4. Take up 2, and weave it in and out of the other three bobbins, passing over the centre one in going towards the right, and under it when returning to the left. Six turns will be sufficient. Return the weaving bobbin to its pair on the left, and cross both pairs once.

The Spider.—(Observe that the 7th to the 12th pairs are used for the spiders, and the 9th and 10th pairs for the short plait connecting the spiders, as well as to outline them.) Twist the 7th and 8th pairs thrice; work cloth-stitch with the 9th, 8th, and 7th pairs; twist the 11th and 12th pairs thrice; work cloth-stitch with the 10th, 11th, and 12th pairs, with the 10th, 9th, and 8th, and with the 10th and 11th pairs; work a cloth-stitch with the 9th and 10th pairs, and put a pin in hole 8 (the centre hole of the spider). Work cloth-stitch with the 10th, 9th, 8th, and 7th pairs; and twist the 7th pair thrice; work cloth-stitch with the 10th, 11th, and 12th pairs, and twist the 12th pair thrice; work cloth-stitch with the 10th, 9th, and 8th pairs, and twist the 8th pair thrice; work a cloth-stitch with the 10th and 11th pairs, and with the 9th and 10th pairs. This completes the spider. Make a plait with the 9th and 10th pairs by working two half-stitches with them.

Footings to Left (continued).—Work cloth-stitch with the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th pairs, twisting each pair after connecting them; work cloth-stitch with the 4th, 5th, and 6th pairs, twisting the 6th pair once, and connecting it with the 7th pair as before. Carry the 6th pair back in the same way to hole 10, and work straight edge again. Work a cloth-stitch with the 8th and 7th pairs, twisting the 8th pair thrice, and the 7th pair once; carry the 2nd pair through the 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th pairs to hole 11; connect the 6th and 7th pairs as previously. Twist the 7th pair thrice; carry the 6th pair back to hole 12, and work straight edge again.

The Scoolop.—Twist the 18th pair once. Work cloth-stitch with the 21st, 20th, 19th, and 18th pairs, and put a pin in hole 13. Carry the 19th pair back through the 20th and 21st pairs; twist the 21st pair once; work a cloth-stitch with the 21st and 22nd pairs, and put a pin in hole 14. Twist the 22nd pair thrice and the 21st once; enclose with a cloth-stitch, and twist both pairs once. Carry the 21st pair (the workers) back through the 20th, 19th, and 18th pairs, and put a pin in hole 15. Twist the workers once, and carry them back through the 19th, 20th, and 21st pairs; twist them once again, connecting them with the 22nd pair, and put a pin in hole 16. Twist the 22nd pair thrice and the 21st once, and enclose with a cloth-stitch; twist both pairs once. Carry the 21st pair back through the 20th, 19th, and 18th pairs, and connect them with the 17th pair (the workers left over at hole 7 in open work on right, which here change places with the workers of the scoolop).

through the 16th and 15th pairs, twisting each pair once after connecting them, and on through the 14th and 13th pairs; twist the 13th pair once, and connect them with the 12th pair as before, putting a pin in hole 17. Work a cloth-stitch with the 12th and 11th pairs; twist the 12th pair twice, and the 11th thrice; carry the 13th pair back through the 14th and 15th pairs, twist them once, and carry them on through the 16th and 17th pairs, and put a pin in hole 18; twist both pairs once, and work back through the 16th and 15th pairs; twist the workers once, and carry them on through the 14th and 13th pairs; twist the 13th pair once, and connect them with the 12th pair, as previously, putting a pin in hole 19.
Scollop (continued).—Carry the 18th pair through the 19th, 20th, and 21st pairs, twist them once, and connect them with the 22nd pair, putting a pin in hole 20; twist the 22nd pair thrice and the 21st once, and enclose with a cloth-stitch; twist both pairs once again. Carry the 21st pair back through the 20th, 19th, and 18th pairs, putting a pin in hole 21. Work backwards and forwards in the same way to holes 22, 23, and 24, where inclose the pin with a cloth-stitch.

Open Work to Right (continued).—Carry the workers (13th pair) through the 14th, 15th, 16th, and 17th pairs, and on through the 18th, 19th, and 20th pairs, which come from the scollop. Observe that the workers (20th pair) have changed places with a pair of passives in the scollop. Put a pin in hole 25 between the 17th and 18th pairs, and work a cloth-stitch with them. Twist the 17th pair (the passives from the scollop) once, and carry them back through the 16th, 15th, 14th, and 13th pairs to hole 26, where leave them hanging.

Continue as above. The design is repeated after every third scollop.

13.—Edging with Bars and Spiders.

Bobbins required, 29 pairs.

Design marked a to j (Fig. 27).

Hang six pairs each at d and g, and two pairs at each of the remaining letters. Inclose the pins at a, b, e, f, i, and j.

Commence with the half-spider to left, working cloth-stitch with the following pairs:—9th and 10th, 9th and 8th, 8th and 7th, 10th and 11th, 11th and 12th, 9th and 10th; twist each pair thrice; this completes the half-spider.

Observe that in the bars running from right to left two threads run in uninterrupted lines from the scollop to the straight-edge, and that in the bars running from left to right, two threads are also carried from the straight-edge to the scollop, but are interrupted whenever they cross the bars from the right.

Upper Half of Spiders.—Twist each pair twice, and work the spiders in the usual way, commencing with the two centre pairs of each spider, and putting a pin in each centre hole.

Commence again from the beginning.
14.—Insertion with Diamond Plaits.

Bobbins required, 24 pairs.
Design marked a to j (Fig. 29).
Hang three pairs each at a and j, and two pairs at each of the remaining letters. Inclose the pins.

* The Ground.—Work double rose-stitch for the ground on either side of the upper half of the flower space. Put a pin between each set of two pairs hanging from the ground, and inclose with a half-stitch. (If the double rose-stitch has been correctly worked, there will be a half-stitch on each set of the pairs in the space.)

* The Diamond Plait.—Work a plait with each set of four threads by weaving the second in and out of the other three, passing over the middle one when working to the right, and under it when working to the left. Cross both pairs once and work a half-stitch with them; put a pin between them at the inner point of the diamond plait design, and inclose with a half-stitch.

There are two methods followed for filling in the centres of the flowers: in the first, the threads are merely crossed; in the second, a pair of workers is used.

Method I.—After the plaits of the upper half of the flower have been worked, the threads hanging from them must be crossed, which is done by working cloth-stitch with them. Those from the right will form the plaits on the lower left side of the centre square, and those from the left will form the plaits on the lower right side of the square. Draw the threads up firmly; work a half-stitch with each set of four threads, putting a pin in the holes at the opposite sides of the square, as shown by the lines drawn in the design; and inclose with a half-stitch. Weave the eight plaits for the lower half of the flower, finishing each one with a half-stitch, a pin put in the hole, and another half-stitch.

!Pattern of Insertion with Diamond Plaits

Fig. 28.—Pattern of Insertion with Diamond Plaits.

Before exemplifying the second method, work the ground on either side down to the middle of the next flower space, weaving the eight plaits for the upper half of the flower as before.
Method II.—Use, as workers, the right-hand pair of the two centre pairs from the plait marked 1, and work cloth-stitch with them through the three pairs to the left. Remove the pin at the inner point of plait 2, and replace it so as to support the workers. Carry the workers through all the pairs to plait 3 (including the two pairs forming plait 3); remove the pin, and replace it so as to support the workers. Continue to work backwards and forwards through all the pairs to plaits 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, being careful to include both pairs of each plait before removing the pin, and to replace the pin so as to support the workers. After hole 8, and up to hole 16, the workers must be carried on backwards and forwards in the same way, leaving a set of four threads at the inner points of each of the plait designs. Draw all the threads up firmly. Before weaving the plaits, work a half-stitch with each set of two pairs, remove the pin, replace it between the pairs, and inclose with a half-stitch. Weave the plaits as before, ending with a half-stitch, a pin put in the outer hole, and another half-stitch.

The Ground (continued).—Continue the ground down to the middle of the next flower space, where repeat the diamond plait from *. It is advisable to fill in all the flowers in the same way, following one only of the two methods given.

15.—Cluny Lace Edging.

Bobbins required, 19 pairs.
Design marked a to k (Fig. 31).
Hang three pairs each at d, f, and g, and two pairs at each of the remaining letters. Use flax embroidery thread.

The Half Diamond.—Work half-stitch with the following pairs, and carry on the worker:—

Work half-stitch with the 10th, 9th, and 8th pairs, put a pin in hole 7, and inclose. Make a plait with the 8th and 9th pairs by working four half-stitches with them. Plait the 6th and 7th pairs by working four half-stitches with them.

_Footing._—Work a cloth-stitch with the 1st and 2nd pairs, and twist both pairs once. Work cloth-stitch with the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th pairs; twist the 4th pair once; work a cloth-stitch with the 4th and 5th pairs; put a pin in hole 8. Twist the 5th pair thrice, and the 4th once, and inclose the pin with a cloth-stitch; twist both pairs once.
Work cloth-stitch with the 4th, 3rd, and 2nd pairs; twist the 2nd pair once, and work a cloth-stitch with the 2nd and 1st pairs; put a pin in hole 9. Twist the 1st pair thrice, and the 2nd once, and inclose the pin with a cloth-stitch; twist both pairs once.

Work cloth-stitch with the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th pairs; twist the 4th pair once; work a cloth-stitch with the 4th and 5th pairs; twist both pairs once, and work cloth-stitch with the 5th, 6th, and 7th pairs (the last two pairs were previously plaited); put a pin in hole 10. Carry the 7th pair back to hole 11, working as before. Inclose the pin at hole 11, after twisting the outer pair thrice and the inner once.

The Scallopl with Waved Border.—Work cloth-stitch with the 15th, 14th, 13th, 12th, 11th, and 10th pairs; put a pin in hole 12; twist the 10th pair once. Work cloth-stitch with the 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th pairs; put a pin in hole 13; twist the workers once; work cloth-stitch with the 15th, 14th, 13th, 12th, 11th, and 10th pairs; put a pin in hole 14; twist the workers once; work cloth-stitch with the 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th pairs, and leave the workers hanging.

(The waved border must now be worked, and attached to the scallop. It is worked with four pairs of threads, which are carried on throughout the lace, and are attached to the tape-like foundation of the scallop at regular intervals.)

Make a plait with the 18th and 19th pairs by working two half-stitches with them, and another plait with the 16th and 17th pairs by working three half-stitches with them. Here cross the two sets of pairs by working cloth-stitch with them, and put a pin between the pairs in the hole where the lines cross. The two pairs on the right will form the arc which is carried through the waved border, and the two pairs on the left will form the waved border. Plait the 18th and 19th pairs with three half-stitches; carry the 15th pair through the 16th and 17th pairs; put a pin in hole 15; twist the workers once, and work back through the 17th, 16th, 15th, 14th, 13th, and 12th pairs, leaving the 10th and 11th pairs to be used for the Long Plait seen in the design. Put a pin in hole 16; twist the workers once; carry them through to the 15th pair; put a pin in hole 17; twist them thrice, and work back to hole 18. Carry the workers through all the pairs to the 15th pair, where they will be used to attach the waved border to the braid of the scallop. Plait the 16th and 17th pairs with four half-stitches, and work through the 18th and 19th pairs, crossing all the threads. Put a pin between the sets in the hole where the lines again cross. Plait the 16th and 17th pairs with four half-stitches, and the 18th and 19th with three half-stitches.

* The Picot.—Work the first picot in the following way:—Take the outside bobbin of the 19th pair in the left hand, and make a loop with it by passing a pin under the thread, and bringing it over the thread pointing towards you as at Fig. 32. Put the pin in the first of the three holes in the waved border; twist the pair once, and make 'stitch about the pin' by working a cloth-stitch with the 19th and 18th pairs, drawing the threads closely up to the pin. Twist both pairs once, and work two half-stitches with them. Work the second and the third picots in the same way, repeating from *. Cross the 16th, 17th, 18th, and 19th pairs, putting a pin between them where the lines again meet. Plait the 16th and 17th pairs with four half-stitches, and the 18th and 19th pairs with three half-stitches.
Work cloth-stitch with the 15th, 16th, and 17th pairs; put a pin in hole 19. Carry the workers through all the pairs to the 12th pair; put a pin in hole 20, and work backwards and forwards to holes 21 and 25, where leave them ready to be connected with the pair from the centre of the long plait.

Diamond or Long Plaits.—Use the 10th and 11th pairs for the long plait to the right. Work a half-stitch with the two pairs, and ‘stick a pin’ (a phrase much used in lace making) between them, close up to the pin at hole 16. Take the second bobbin and weave it in and out of the other three, passing over the centre one when going to the right, and under it when going to the left. A dozen turns will be sufficient. Carry the weaving bobbin back to its pair; cross both pairs once, and work a half-stitch with them; put a pin in hole 22, and inclose with a half-stitch.

Work the long plait to the left in a similar way, using the 6th and 7th pairs, and putting a pin in hole 23.

Put a pin in hole 24 between the 8th and 9th pairs (which were plaited and left hanging); inclose the pin, and carry the 9th pair through the 10th and 11th pairs. Twist them so as to make a cord; connect them with the 12th pair (the workers in the scallop); put a pin in hole 25; carry the 11th pair through the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th pairs, and leave them hanging, to be connected with the 16th and 17th pairs, when the waved border has been worked up to hole 26. Work the border, and put a pin in hole 26; carry the workers back to pair 11, putting a pin in hole 27. The second half of the scallop is worked in the same way.

Carry the 8th pair through the 7th and 6th pairs; twist them so as to make a cord, and leave them hanging. Work the footing to holes 28, 29, and 30, where attach the workers with the pair left hanging as a cord. Work back to hole 31.
EDGING WITH POINT NET GROUND

Observe that the 8th and 9th pairs, which formed the centre plait, now form the cord at either side of the diamond plaits, having been worked through the pairs of which those plaits are formed, and also that the threads from the plaits now hang in the centre.

Cross the 7th and 8th pairs through the 9th and 10th, and draw them up firmly. Twist the 11th pair into a cord, and carry them through the 10th and 9th pairs. Work a half-stitch with the 10th and 9th pairs, and put a pin in hole 32. Twist the 6th pair into a cord, and carry them through the 7th and 8th pairs. Work a half-stitch with the 7th and 8th pairs, and put a pin in hole 33. Work a half-stitch with the 8th and 9th pairs; put a pin in hole 34, and work a plait of four half-stitches. This completes half of the pattern. The second half is worked in a similar way.

16.—Edging with Point Net Ground.

Bobbins required, 20 pairs.
Design marked a to k (Fig. 34).

Hang one pair each at a and k, and two pairs at each of the remaining letters. Imlose the pins at a, c, d, e, and f, and twist each pair twice.

Note.—The design should be drawn on paper ruled in diamond shapes, the longer diagonal being perpendicular to the edge of the lace. The necessity for this is owing to the fact that, in working the net ground, the stitches contract in the width, and, unless worked on a design allowing for this, lose the round shape they should have. But the design can be copied on square sectional paper used diagonally, which is sufficiently accurate for a beginner. A knowledge of this lace will enable the worker to follow the pattern on the pricked parchments procurable for working point net ground. Fine 'gassed' lace thread and linen gimp are used for this lace. In working point net ground, the pin is not inclosed; but, after it is placed, two extra twists are given to the pairs which have formed the half-stitch. The 'worker' is carried along the diagonal line from right to left, and the pairs of threads that are crossed by the worker from the right, have each a 'worker' that will reach the right edge of the lace if the net is correctly worked.
The Footing.—Observe that the 2nd and 3rd pairs are passives, and are carried on throughout the lace in a straight line. * Carry the workers (the 4th pair) through the 3rd and 2nd pairs by working cloth-stitch with them; twist the workers thrice, and support them by a pin at hole 1; work a cloth-stitch with the workers and the 1st pair (without removing the pin), and twist both pairs thrice. Carry the workers (now the 2nd pair) through the 3rd and 4th pairs; twist them thrice, and support them by a pin at hole 3, where they will be connected with the 5th pair after hole 2 is worked.

The Net.—Work a half-stitch with the 5th and 6th pairs; put a pin in hole 2; twist both pairs twice. Do not inclose the pin.

Work a half-stitch with the 4th and 5th pairs without removing the pin supporting the 4th pair at hole 3, and twist both pairs twice.
Footi ng (continued).—Repeat from *, putting a pin in hole 4, and supporting the workers at hole 8, where they will be connected with the 5th pair after holes 5, 6, and 7 are worked.

The Net (continued).—Work a half-stitch with the 7th and 8th pairs; put a pin in hole 5, and twist both pairs twice. Do not inclose the pin.
Work a half-stitch with the 6th and 7th pairs; put a pin in hole 6, and twist both pairs twice. Do not inclose the pin.

Work a half-stitch with the 5th and 6th pairs; put a pin in hole 7, and twist both pairs twice. Do not inclose the pin.

Footings (continued).—Repeat from *, putting a pin in hole 9, and support the workers at hole 15, where they will be connected with the 5th pair later on.

Footings (continued).—Repeat from *, putting a pin in hole 16, and supporting the workers at hole 31, where they will afterwards be connected with the 5th pair.

The Scollop.—Work cloth-stitch with the 12th to 19th pairs. The pearl point at the edge is made in the following way:—

† Pearl point.—Twist the 19th pair thrice, and work a cloth-stitch with the 20th pair; pull up. Twist the 20th pair five times (or seven times if the thread is very fine). Take up the outside thread with the left hand and a pin with the right; make a loop by passing the pin under the thread and bringing it over the thread pointing towards you (Fig. 32). Run the pin up to the hole, stick it, lay down the bobbin, and pass the other thread of the same pair round the pin from the lower side, i.e., the side nearest to you, twist once, make a cloth-stitch again with the 20th and 19th pairs, and twist both pairs thrice.

Work backwards and forwards in the same way to hole 23, leaving a pair at each turn on the left, and working a pearl point † with the 19th and 20th pairs at each turn on the right. At hole 23, the pearl is not made, but the workers should be connected with the 20th pair as usual, a pin placed, another cloth-stitch made, and both pairs twisted thrice.

Work the next three diagonal lines as usual, commencing with the 12th and 13th pairs, and working the footing as before.

The Scallops (continued).—Work the scollop as before, commencing with the 19th pair, taking in a pair at every turn on the left, until the inner point is reached, after which, leave a pair at every turn. Follow the order of the holes as indicated by the zigzag line in the design.

17.—Honeycomb Insertion.

Bobbins required, 22 pairs.
Design marked a to k (Fig. 36). [The design should be drawn on paper ruled in diamond shapes.]
Hang two pairs at each of the letters, inclose the pins with cloth-stitch to steady the threads, and twist each pair twice.

Carry the 2nd pair through the 3rd and 4th pairs by working cloth-stitch with them; twist them thrice, and support them by a pin at hole 1. Observe that the 2nd and 3rd pairs are carried on in a straight line throughout the lace.

Work a half-stitch with the 5th and 4th pairs (the 4th pair are the workers that were left supported) without removing the pin from hole 1, and twist both pairs twice.

3rd and 2nd pairs, twist them thrice, and support by a pin at hole 2. Work a cloth-stitch with the 1st and 2nd pairs without removing the pin, twist both pairs thrice. Carry the 2nd pair through the 3rd and 4th pairs, and support by a pin at hole 4, where they will be connected with the 5th pair after hole 3 is worked.
HONEYCOMB INSERTION

Work a half-stitch with the 5th and 6th pairs; put a pin in hole 3; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin; give an extra twist to both pairs.

Fig. 36.—Design for Honeycomb Insertion.

Connect the 4th and 5th pairs by working a half-stitch with them without removing the pin from hole 4, and twist both pairs twice.
Work the footing to left again, *, putting a pin in hole 5, and supporting the workers at hole 10.

Note.—Honeycomb stitch is worked diagonally, and has two rows—commonly called the 'long' and the 'short' rows—in its construction. The 'long' row has a continuous line of stitches at which the threads meet from the right and left, and are carried on without interruption to both edges of the lace. The 'short' row is interrupted at every alternate stitch, thus engaging two fresh pairs at every stitch. By observing the design (Fig. 38) it will be seen that every alternate diagonal line has a continuous row of dots, whilst the intervening lines have a space omitted between every two dots.

The 'Long' Row.—Work a half-stitch with the 8th and 9th pairs, put a pin in hole 6; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs. Work a half-stitch with the 7th and 8th pairs; put a pin in hole 7; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs. Work a half-stitch with the 6th and 7th pairs; put a pin in hole 8; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs. Work a half-stitch with the 5th and 6th pairs; put a pin in hole 9; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs.

Connect the 4th and 5th pairs by working a half-stitch with them without removing the pin from hole 10, and twist both pairs twice.

Work the footing to left again, *, putting a pin in hole 11, and supporting the workers at hole 15.

§ The 'Short' Row.—Work a half-stitch with the 9th and 10th pairs; put a pin in hole 12; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs. Work a half-stitch with the 7th and 8th pairs; put a pin in hole 13; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs. Work a half-stitch with the 5th and 6th pairs; put a pin in hole 14; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs.

Connect the 4th and 5th pairs by working a half-stitch with them without removing the pin from hole 15, and twist both pairs twice.

Work the footing to left again, *, putting a pin in hole 16, and supporting the workers at hole 24.

Work the next diagonal line (or 'long' row) in the following way, and with the pairs indicated:—Work a half-stitch with the two pairs; put a pin in the hole; twist both pairs once, and inclose the pin with a half-stitch; give an extra twist to both pairs.

Pass the left gimp between the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th pairs, and the right gimp between the 19th, 18th, 17th, and 16th pairs. Carry the left gimp up through the 16th, 17th, 18th, and 19th pairs; support by a pin at the top of the diamond to the right (hole 13), and carry on the gimp between the 20th, 21st, 22nd, and 23rd pairs without making any twists on the threads between the two lines of gimp. Twist each pair once after the gimp has reached the right corner of the diamond.

Work the diamond to right in cloth-stitch, commencing with the 19th and 20th pairs, using the pin hole where the gimp is supported (hole 13), and working holes 14 to 24 in the usual way.

Pass the right gimp up between the 15th, 14th, 13th, and 12th pairs without making any twists on the threads between the two lines of gimps; support by a pin at hole 25, and carry the gimp on through the 11th, 10th, 9th, and 8th pairs; twist each pair once.

Work the diamond to left in cloth-stitch, commencing with the 11th and 12th pairs, using the pin hole where the gimp was supported (hole 25). Continue the diamond from hole 26 to hole 36.

Carry the gimps from right and left through all the pairs until they meet at hole 37, where support by a pin. Twist each pair once.

The Lower Diamond.—Work half-stitch with the 15th and 16th pairs, using the pin hole at which the gimps were supported (hole 37). And continue the diamond in half-stitch from holes 38 to 48.

The Gimp (continued).—Carry the gimps round the lower edges of the diamond, crossing them at the point where they meet, and twist each pair in the diamond once.
The Ground (continued).—Work the ground in honeycomb stitch as before, commencing from the line next to the diamond enclosure, and working towards the footing on either side, until the outer corners of the next enclosure are reached.

Repeat from *. The gimp can be omitted, and the diamonds worked as shown in the second square of the pattern.
HOW TO DESIGN FROM A PATTERN OF LACE

If the patterns in both Parts of this book have been worked, there will be little difficulty in following the directions given below. Two examples of lace are given, the first a very simple one, and the second more difficult.

Example I.—Observe that the pattern is formed of a series of diamond shapes bordered by a line of straight-edge on each side. Every diamond has four pin holes on each side, or 12 in all, as shown in Fig. 41. The threads from one diamond pass on to the next, and again to the next, so carrying on the pattern. Every third diamond is worked in cloth or whole-stitch, and the others in lace or half-stitch; but the design is the same in each case.

Fig. 42 shows the design for two diamonds. As will be seen in the figure, the design is made clear by enclosing each diamond within lines, which is called 'sketching in the pattern.'

Fig. 41.—Design for One Diamond.

Fig. 42.—Design for Two Diamonds.

Fig. 43 shows the design for three diamonds, one of which (No. 3) is immediately below No. 1, and the remaining diamond (No. 2) fits into the space between the other two, on the right.
Fig. 44 shows the design for four diamonds, or two sets of two. It will be seen that there is a blank triangular space left on each side, marked *, which answers to the spaces worked in torchon-stitch, forming the ground of the lace.

Observe that the pin holes in diagonal lines occur at every crossing of the lines on the sectional paper; but in the upright and horizontal lines they occur at alternate crossings only.

!Design with Straight Edge

!Design Completed, with Ground Spaces filled in

In marking the pin holes for the design of the straight-edge, a row of dots is made on either side of the diamonds, as in Fig. 45. The dots for this pattern are in the next line of the sectional paper beyond the points of the diamonds.

The triangular spaces on both sides of the diamonds must have pin holes marked for torchon-stitch, as in Fig. 46. It will be seen from the pattern (Fig. 40) that there are six points in each triangle (which must be marked by dots), at which the threads of the ground cross, and that the crossings occur wherever the lines running diagonally meet, and are in a line with the dots of the straight-edge.

Example II.—This pattern is made up of a row of daisies, surrounded by a ground of double-rose stitch, finished by a row of straight-edge, and on the right, by a vandyke worked in cloth-stitch, and a shell border.

It was shown in Part I. (Figs. 34 and 35), that though each double-rose stitch forms a small square, it is really worked on a diamond-shaped design, as in Fig. 48, the pin holes being at the points of the diamond. To form a number of these designs a double line of dots has to be made diagonally on the sectional paper at every crossing, beginning the second line a space lower than the first, and omitting one crossing. The dots, taking four at a time, are then sketched in, to bring out the diamond design, as in Fig. 49.

To make the double-rose stitch square clear, each diamond shape should be inclosed in a pencilled square, as shown by dotted lines in Fig. 50. The pencil marks should be rubbed out after the whole design is complete, and has been sketched in in ink.

To inclose a daisy space, twelve diamond shapes are required, as in Fig. 51.
In a succession of daisies, it will be observed that each space is connected with the preceding one at the lowest diamond shape, and that every enclosure after the first requires only eleven new diamond shapes, as shown in Fig. 52.
The ground on the left has now to be filled in, each space of which contains three double-rose squares.

Fig. 53 shows how the design for these and for the straight-edge on the left is made. The straight-edge merely requires a row of dots between, and in the same line as the extreme points of the diamond shapes.

The design for the daisy is made as follows:—Draw cross lines through the centre of the diamond enclosure, and at the centre describe a circle within the four squares of the sectional paper, as shown in the first enclosure of Fig. 53. There are eight petals to the daisy—two in each quarter of the enclosure. The dotted lines in the same section of the figure, define the squares made by the double-rose stitches when they are worked; and the inner corner of each small square is the point at which the work of each of the petals either begins or ends. The dots round the circle at the centre show the points at which they either end or begin. In the second enclosure the cross lines, the central circle, and the guiding points, explained in the first enclosure, are marked, and the petals are sketched in. The third enclosure gives the design for the daisy complete, after the pencil lines have been rubbed out.

The design for the vandyke and shell border has now to be made. A line running from point to point, defining the design already made, is necessary to keep it clear. Two rows of dots are made for the vandyke, the first row commencing from the second crossing of the sectional paper from the extreme point of the daisy enclosure, and carried on diagonally to the second crossing in the line of the diamond design between the daisy enclosures. The second row of dots begins on the same horizontal line as the first, leaving one crossing between. This forms one half of the vandyke, which is completed by similarly continuing both rows to the next extreme point of the daisy enclosure, where the vandyke is repeated. It will be observed that a single double-rose stitch is worked in the centre of each space between the vandyke and the shell. A diamond design is required for this, and should be made on the same horizontal lines as the diamond design between the daisy enclosures, and at the same distance from the vandyke.

The shell requires two circular lines to define the design. The position of the inner line is determined by the requirements of the rose-stitch in the space between the vandyke and the shell. To find this, draw pencil lines inclosing the diamond design so as to form a square, as shown in the first space in Fig. 54. In the second space of the same figure, lines should be drawn at the corners of the square showing the points from which the threads are taken for the double-rose stitch. A circular line drawn from the fourth dot from the extreme point of the vandyke to the similar dot opposite, and passing through the second crossing of the sectional paper from the extreme point on the right of the diamond design, gives the required inner line. The outer line is drawn from the second dot from the extreme point of the vandyke to the corresponding point on the other side, and is slightly more arched than the inner one. This is shown in the second shell space of Fig. 54.

After these two lines have been drawn, a pencilled circular line should be marked as a guide for the pointed edging of the shell, as shown in the dotted arc in the third shell space of the figure. It will be observed that there are seven points in this edging. To find these, the pencilled arc should be divided into eight equal parts, one point being in the centre, and the other points on either side at equal distances, as shown in the same space of the figure. Eight other points are required at the base of the edging on the outer circular line, where the edging is connected with the shell. These points are found by dividing the line into nine equal parts, as shown in the third space of the figure.

On the inner circular line, seven dots are also required to mark the points at which the workers turn. These are found by dividing the line into eight equal parts. It will be observed that the workers start from the inner circular line, and take eight turns at the points in the outer arc. This is shown in the fourth space in the figure.

All that now remains to be done is to mark the lines to be followed by the workers in the vandyke. As will be seen in the fourth space of Fig. 54, the line commences at the first dot of the inner of the two rows for the vandyke, and crosses over to the corresponding dot of the outer row. It then passes to the second dot of the outer row, where the workers change, and proceeds backwards and forwards to the several dots of the two rows in their order until the inner bend of the vandyke is reached. The line now passes to the next dot of the inner row, where the workers change again, and proceeds backwards and forwards to the several dots in their order, until the vandyke is completed.

Directions for working.—After a design has been drawn, it is necessary to indicate how it is to be worked. The simplest way of doing this is to number the different parts of the design and write the general directions in the margin, as shown in Fig. 55. Where this method is followed, an illustration of the lace is not required.

A duplicate of the design will be found convenient, as it obviates the necessity for removing the lace from the pillow where this is of a bolster shape and can be worked round.
WORKING OF CORNERS

Five samples of corners, with the designs for working them, are now given.

Designs.—By observing the designs, it will be seen that the pattern is carried on without any changes up to the line at which the corner turns (see Design for Corner No. 1), and that it is reversed on the opposite side, and so continued. Any spaces left between the two parts of the pattern are marked so as to be filled in with a simple stitch in keeping with the ground of the lace.

!Diagram of Corner No. 1

Working.—The object of working corners is to avoid having to cut and join the lace, when either introducing it as an Insertion, or carrying it round as an Edging. It should be commenced at a little distance from the corner, and where the pattern has a natural division in its structure. The bobbins must be hung in pairs (see Pattern and Design for Corner No. 1), so as to form a row of loops to which the completed lace can be attached. The lace must be worked up to the dividing line at which the corner turns, and every hole filled in. For the opposite side, the work must be commenced from the outside edge of the corner, using the pairs for each part that have formed the corresponding part of the pattern. To complete the lace, the two edges should be joined in the following way:—Pin the looped edge on the design upon which it was worked. Commence to join from the outer edge. Draw one of the threads of the pair at the outside through the loop made at the edge where the lace was commenced—using a fine crochet hook; pass its pair through the drawn thread, and tie close up to the lace. Do the same with the two remaining pairs at the edge. Repeat this at the inner edge. The intervening pairs must be joined in the same way all along the line. A flat knot, as in Fig. 60, is the best. The threads can then be cut off. If the pattern is close, the threads might be run into the work and then cut off; but, if this is not possible, a fine oversewing will make the join secure.
