A MIRACLE IN THE TRAINING OF BLINDED AND MAIMED SOLDIERS IN FRANCE

The fact that so many soldiers were blinded and lost limbs in the war raised a serious problem in all the belligerent countries. These men had been incapacitated from following their professions, which many of them had been engaged in for years, and they were confronted with a new form of work which they might be forced to perform.

M. Debreci's discovery shows how the problem of finding work for blinded soldiers who have had one or two limbs amputated has been solved in France. He was engaged in re-adaptation work for these men during the war by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Kemery, of New York.

This school, located in Bouligny, near Paris, was opened and operated by a French Commission under the presidency of M. Beraud, of the French Academy, and is the only one of its kind in the world. It is the only institution in the country where mental training is the main problem. The students are taught the various trades and crafts which they might be forced to perform in order to make a living.
